| Directions | Respond thoughtfully to the prompts below. Neatly fill at least one full page in your journal (not including this sheet). |
| Important Teachers | Do you agree with Father Roger Schmit that Russell Henderson and Aaron McKinney are “our most important teachers?” Why or why not? What can people learn from them? How might what they have to say be valuable to society? If you had a chance to talk with Russell or Aaron, what would you ask them? |
| Change | Several of the characters portrayed change in subtle or dramatic ways throughout the play. Read Jedediah Schultz’s words on pages 11-13, 57, 85, and 98. Would you characterize his change as minor or dramatic? How might his experience affect his outlook and interactions in the future? Alternatively, explain the transformation of another character. |
| Results | Jonas Slonaker voices his frustration that “nobody anywhere, has passed any kind of laws, antidiscrimination laws or hate crime legislation” (99). He asks, “What’s come out of it? What’s come out of this that’s concrete or lasting?” (99). In your opinion, has anything come out of Matthew’s death that is concrete or lasting? If so what? How and why is it important? If not, why do you think so? |
